DYING TO LIVE – A Migrant’s Journey

Instructions:

Use Circle Process for the first three questions (see page 2)

1. What feeling(s) arose in you as you watched this video?
2. How does this film connect with your own life?
3. What one thing did you learn from this video?
4. What biblical ethics/principles would you recommend to your congregation/group in how to respond to immigrants in your own communities. Give a practical example of what each biblical ethic/principle looks like in your own context? Each group print their response on their assigned flip chart paper posted on the wall after their discussion. See example below.

Circle Process
Provide a talking piece for each group. You can use a stone, a stick, any object that can be held in your hand and passed around.

Introduction to the Circle Process
This process allows us to speak from the heart. It is not about debating or responding to what another persons says. It’s about each person responding directly to the question as they are led by their heart and soul to answer.

This process provides a way to speak openly and honestly in a listening environment. Since each person is not focused on how to respond to each other they are better able to listen intently to each other.

Guidelines to the Process
1. Each group picks a facilitator and time keeper. The facilitators helps keep the group focused on the question, not responding each other. The time keeper makes sure that everyone has enough time to speak.
2. As the talking piece is handed around the circle people can choose to speak or pass.*
3. Speak only when you have the talking piece.
4. Be respectful in how you speak.
5. Do not interrupt another person speaking.
6. Be mindful of the time.
7. What is spoken within the circle stays in the circle unless permission is granted by the group.

*The facilitator may go back to those who may have passed and ask if they want to respond to the current question before going to the next question.
